AirVenture gap impact weighed

Cancellation puts many to financial stretch test

By Joseph Schulz
HERALD CONTRIBUTOR

Each summer, more than 600,000 aviation enthusiasts descend on Oshkosh, boosting the local economy. There will be no AirVenture visitors roaming the streets this year and no additional revenue for businesses still reeling from the pandemic.

In early May, EAA announced it was canceling its signature event planned for July 20 to 26. A virtual Spirit of Aviation Week is planned July 21-25.

AirVenture injects roughly $170 million into the Fox Valley region each year, visitors and exhibitors totaled $121 million in the Fox Valley, creating additional spending of roughly $50 million for area business.

Without that spending power, service providers, vendors and contractors who work directly with EAA will all be negatively impacted, according to Greater Oshkosh Economic Development Corp. CEO Jason White.

"Imagine having your restaurant full for days on end before, during and after AirVenture, versus now, where every other table must be closed off due to social distancing," White said. "Imagine being an equipment rental company and having no vendors to lease to. Imagine servicing a portion of the 30,000 planes that land or take off that week, but now having no income from that activity."

The lost revenue comes as small businesses are already facing a dire situation.

White said companies that were struggling before the pandemic are typically the ones struggling the most to keep the lights on now.

"That's why it's always important to maintain the fundamentals of your business in good times," he said. "Sadly, I do expect more businesses to fail in this environment."

Local bars and restaurants were forced to close for dine-in service in March and just recently reopened while limiting capacity to prevent the spread of COVID-19.

"2020 is going to be a very trying year for everybody," said Steve Lawler, owner of Red's Pizza & Catering on Oregon Street.

Red's had to cancel 14 caterings as a result of AirVenture's cancellation, many of which were the restaurant's biggest of the year, Lawler noted. The company will also lose income generated by its food tent on the EAA grounds during the weeklong event.

Lawler declined to provide an exact figure for lost revenue from AirVenture's cancellation but described it as "significant."

"It's definitely going to impact the business, but it is what it is," he said. "There isn't much we can do about it; everybody's pretty much in the same boat."

La Sure's Hall Banquets & Catering owner Bob Heisler noted the business usually does 50 to 60 caterings a week during the summer but is only doing one or two a week this summer.

During March and April, he said the

Jail diversion programs evolve with space needs

By Bethanie Gengler
HERALD CONTRIBUTOR

A jail diversion program formerly called Justice Support Services, which closely mirrors current calls for criminal justice reform, has a new name but the same location after being approved by the Winnebago County Board last fall, according to the District Attorney's Office.

Justice Support Services has been renamed Winnebago County Connect and was developed as an alternative to a proposed $18.1 million jail expansion.

Connect works as a jail diversion program for low-level offenders and the District Attorney's Office hoped to consolidate services for those individuals including mental health, alcohol and other drug abuse treatment, and employment skills training.

Last fall, District Attorney Christian Gossett asked the county board for funding to remodel the first floor of the Orrin King building for the program. A disagreement over office space led the board to amend the proposal and approve $282,677 to remodel a basement location.

Gossett expressed disappointment in the site because it's smaller than the first floor and could limit the program's capacity to move forward. More than seven months later, remodeling has not begun.

Director of facilities Michael Elder said the project requires drawings and bid documents that were delayed due to precautions the architectural firm took amid the pandemic.

The Facilities Department received the drawings and documents for review June 17 and Elder said the project will be put out for bid within 10 days. Bids will be due three weeks later and remodeling should begin as soon as contracts are executed.

County Executive Mark Harris said three lower-level offices and one first-floor meeting room have been made available for Connect. The coroner's office, previously in the basement of the Orrin King

Council discusses diversity initiatives

Oshkosh Herald

A proposal from Mayor Lori Palmeri for a future agenda item on police reform did not gain the needed Common Council approval at its June 23 meeting. Council members Matt Mugerauer and Debra Allison-Aasby were in unison to say the Oshkosh Police Department is already forthcoming in transparency efforts and meets national accreditation requirements while Michael Ford said the issue is political.

Police Chief Dean Smith said at the meeting that after several discussions with community members throughout the Fox Valley since George Floyd's death May 25 he believes the civil rights movement in Oshkosh is a community initiative and not solely a police issue.

Palmeri asked Smith to write a summary of the ideas he has learned while having discussions. Smith asked that it be published on the city website to reflect the communitywide nature of the issue once written.

Council discussed the newly created diversity, equity and inclusion committee and the eight Palmeri-appointed individuals. Palmeri struck an agenda item earlier in the meeting related to an ordinance to amend membership to the committee.

Mugerauer and Allison-Aasby said they were concerned the appointed individuals represented too much government as a majority work for Winnebago County or the University of Wisconsin Oshkosh. Mugerauer said he also was concerned that some are not city residents.

Three positions are left to fill on the committee. Residents can submit applications through a link on the city website on the Committees and Boards drop-down menu of the Government page.

The council also discussed transportation utility fee options at length. Residents will have a chance to air concerns at a special meeting on the ongoing topic to be established by the council, which City Manager Mark Rohloff suggested it take up separately.

The city attempted to approve a transportation utility fee a year ago but decided against it when legal barriers arose. The League of Wisconsin Municipalities has advised on those legal issues and the council will turn to residents for future input.

- Other topics discussed:
- In a report on summer street construction projects, Rohloff said West 9th Avenue will be the most extensive as the Plan Commission forwarded four project options ranging from low spending to a multilane road built for heavy use with bike paths and sidewalks.
  - The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention will be shadowing the Winnebago County Health Department after national news of a sharp increase in new cases among 20 to 29 year olds.
  - City hall will reopen July 13. There will be a greeter offering face masks to people who don't have one. Rohloff encouraged residents to continue using on-line resources.
  - Funding for the first year of a city-school free transportation program for students was completed, council member and Board and Education member Bob Poeschl said. Fundraising for the second year has already begun.

Judge dismisses civil suit against former UWO officials

By Miles Maguire
HERALD CONTRIBUTOR

The state’s civil lawsuit against two former officials of the University of Wisconsin Oshkosh was dismissed last week, bringing to a close a legal process that resulted in criminal pleas by the two men, a bankruptcy case for the school’s fundraising arm and years of negative publicity for the institution.

In a one-sentence order, Dane County Circuit Judge Richard G. Niess dismissed the civil case “with prejudice,” meaning that it cannot be brought back up.

He said his order was based on an agreement between the UW System and the defendants, former Chancellor Richard Wells and former Vice Chancellor Thomas Sonleitner.

The two men pleaded guilty five months ago to charges of misconduct in office and agreed to pay restitution and fines totaling about $75,000 apiece.

It is unclear why it took so much time to resolve the civil lawsuit. Raymond M. Dall’Osto, who represented Wells in the case, chalked the delay up to “general inertia and (the state) being otherwise occupied by COVID-related matters, such as the primary election and various legislative lawsuits against the executive.”

The civil case was filed in January 2017 but soon got caught up in legal wrangling over the UW Oshkosh Foundation, which filed for bankruptcy later that year and then filed suit against the UW System. The civil case was put on hold in January 2018.

Meanwhile the criminal charges were filed in May of that year, weeks before the university was to host a site visit by a reaccreditation team from the Higher Learning Commission.

At the time the university was “on notice” from the commission because of the foundation case and needed to demonstrate its commitment to resolving the related oversight issues.

Courthouse resumes proceedings, trials

Chief Judge Barbara H. Key signed an order approving a COVID-19 circuit court operating plan for Winnebago County that allows for resumption of in-person proceedings and jury trials.

County courts will resume in-person proceedings in a limited capacity subject to an operational plan created by the judiciary and a county task force, which mandates that face coverings are to be worn by all individuals, including the judge and staff. Judges will continue to schedule and conduct proceedings remotely but may now conduct in-person hearings at their discretion.

The resumption of in-person proceedings will be a four-phase approach from limited in-person hearings to jury trials and ultimately to all proceedings without restriction. Winnebago County jury trials will resume no sooner than July 14. Litigants and their attorneys will be asked to pay close attention to their notice of hearing, as it will include information as to where and how their hearing will be conducted.

Jail diversion

building, has been relocated to Otter Avenue to accommodate the program.

Gossett said it seemed the remodel project was stalled while other county projects moved forward. His office has continued implementing the Connect program in a limited capacity without a central location.

The recent high-profile deaths of George Floyd, Breonna Taylor and Ahmaud Arbery have sparked protests across the country and calls for criminal justice reform including a movement to reallocate police resources. Activists want funding shifted away from police departments and toward social services that benefit the community, a goal shared by the Connect program.

“The idea behind all of our alternative and diversion programs is to take all these people who are struggling, who are already down and out, and stop treating them like second-class citizens or like they don’t matter,” Gossett said. “They’re not collateral consequences in society; they’re part of our community.”

Jim Palmer, Wisconsin Professional Police Association executive director, said his organization works with the St. Norbert College Strategic Research Institute each year to conduct a Wisconsin Law Enforcement Survey. According to last year’s survey results, 86 percent of white respondents and 68 percent of non-white respondents believe having a well-funded police department contributes to quality of life.

Palmer agreed officers have had to fill various roles within the community that other organizations may be better equipped to handle.

“As far as social services, we would agree that more has been put on the backs of law enforcement officers that should have been addressed on the front end by local government and federal government,” he said.

Gossett said the nation usually deals with issues like poverty, addiction and mental health through incarceration. He said he believes the Connect program is a good start toward reform and hopes the county’s remodel project can move forward.

“Instead of focusing on arresting and prosecuting and incarcerating Wisconsin citizens, let’s figure out how to educate, empower and improve our society,” he said.

Neighbors oppose residential fire training site

By Jack Tierney
OSHKOSH HERALD

A Plan Commission member suggested building a subsidized housing unit on city-owned property at 221 N. Sawyer St. — minutes from three schools, two parks, grocery stores, medical facilities, downtown Oshkosh and public transportation.

That is unlikely to happen after the proposal was denied in a 7-1-1 commission vote to advance a city prepared land use plan, which included developments for a new Fire Department site, to the Common Council.

Commission member and public housing manager with the Oshkosh/Winnebago County Housing Authority Justin Mitchell suggested the subsidized housing idea simply as an alternative to what was being presented by city staff, but cited a larger issue.

He said that the number of potential al-

Two candidate forums slated by LWV

Two candidate forums sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Winnebago County and LWV Wisconsin will be held before the Aug. 11 partisan primary without an audience due to COVID.

On Tuesday, LWV Winnebago County will hold a forum with Republican candidates for Assembly District 55: Lauri Asbury, Jay Schroeder and Rachael Cabral-Guevara. The forum will be taped and made available on YouTube.

On July 9, Democratic primary candidates for the 6th Congressional District — Michael Beardsley, Matthew Boor and Jessica King — will answer questions from a panel including Karen Schneider, publisher of the Oshkosh Herald, and Nathaniel Shuda, editor of the Oshkosh Northternative sites included in the Fire Department's site assessment report presented to the commission and council by city staff was zero. He said that is because no report or site assessment was completed.

"That is not acceptable in the private or public sector," he said. "While the city will point to a feasibility assessment of the onsite building, such assessments are conducted to determine available options and their costs and benefits — not as 'go-aheads' that say something is happening no matter what and with no other assessment. These are key details that have been left out of disclosures for this project, and that result in committees and councils voting in favor simply because it is the Fire Department."

Neighbors have spoken against the proposed Fire Department site too, which includes a 38-foot-tall training structure in a residential neighborhood, and added that communication from the city was a problem.

western. The congressional segment will be followed by county Register of Deeds candidates Paul Esslinger and incumbent Natalie Strohmeier, who are vying for the Republican slot on the Nov. 3 ballot.

The League encourages the public to submit policy questions in advance to wLWVinfo@gmail.com (subject: forum question), by phone at 920-231-4770, or by mail to 1936 Hazel St., Oshkosh WI 54901. The forums are being held earlier than usual in anticipation of mail-in voting.

The forum will be live on Oshkosh Media and WOCT 101.9 FM at 6:30 p.m. and rebroadcast before Aug. 11. It will also be available at www.oshkoshmedia.org and on the Oshkosh Media YouTube channel.

The city notified David and Janett Zerbe at 1217 National Ave., directly across the street from the site, 12 days before the issue went to the Plan Commission, giving the Zerbes and other neighbors less than two weeks to notice the developments, plan their schedule around the city's and express their concerns.

After hearing from Mitchell and the Zerbes about why the land use decision should be reconsidered, the city plan with developments for the Fire Department was advanced through the commission as recommended and the council approved spending money to purchase the structure at their June 23 meeting.

Fire Chief Mike Stanley said the structure will allow for training in a variety of circumstances. He also said the neighborhood location could be helpful for recruiting.

The land use plan has been read and approved through council once and will be on the agenda at its Tuesday meeting for its second and final approval.

Mitchell and the Zerbes clearly stated their support for the Fire Department and welcomed the idea of training in Oshkosh — it's currently being done in Fond du Lac and Neenah and costing the city extra money — but propose it be situated away from a residential neighborhood. Mitchell suggested sites north of the city or in the empty fields next to Fire Station 19 on Snell Road.

Backlot Comedy House ends its seven-year run

The Backlot Comedy House on the 400 block of North Main Street announced its closure last week.

Owner Kyla Morris said on Facebook that it wasn't for a lack of comedians or audience members that they had to close their doors. It was a global pandemic.

"Although it breaks our hearts, it also feels good to know we've paved a way for comedy in the Fox Valley," she said.

"I am so proud of every cast member and comedian who have been a part of this stage. You lived in the uncomfortable, made yourself vulnerable and watching you grow has been a true joy that I'm so honored to have witnessed."

To the downtown neighbors, Morris said they will be missed.

"You are all so, so unique," she said. "Your drive and energy to provide something extra special for Oshkosh is oftentimes overlooked. I see you, and I applaud you for coming to work every day doing what you love even if it doesn't buy you an island."

Backlot hadn't done a show in-store since March to protect guests and comedians, putting their safety over financial priorities. They hosted shows every Friday and Saturday night for seven years. People told Morris from day one that she wouldn't be successful for more than a year.

The store location is available for rent. Tips are welcomed. The Backlot still has expenses that must be paid. A link on their Facebook page will direct individuals where to leave a tip.

"To our fans, thank you for your continued support as our Backlot family navigates this farewell. Backlot has become a safe haven for mental health."

Porch visits with neighbors making comeback

By Kaitlyn Scoville
HERALD CONTRIBUTOR

On the porch of a red and green painted house, a retired couple sit outside on wicker chairs awaiting their next guests. The table between them holds drinks and a container of varied dog treats.

An empty chair by them waits for its next sitter. There used to be two, but because of the pandemic the couple decided to down-size to enforce social distancing.

A sign hanging above them reads, “Come sit on my porch.”

West Bent Avenue and lifelong Oshkosh residents Lindy and Dennis Norkofski have been married 48 years. They sit outside and chat with neighbors and passers-by every day — especially the dogs.

The couple sit outside rain or shine. Blinds are installed on either side of their porch to block the wind and light rain when it’s necessary.

Lindy said that she and Dennis can see upward of 16 dogs and more than 20 people visiting per day.

“As the neighborhood changes, there’s more people that walk dogs now,” Lindy said. “I will see somebody walking across the street with a dog that I haven’t met yet and I’ll always say, ‘How’s your puppy doing today?’”

Some of the dogs that come by their house already know what to expect.

“They are in such a hurry to get over here,” Dennis said. “There’s one guy that walks up with a Newfoundland, probably about 120 pounds. (The owner) can hardly hold him back; he almost drags him across the street.”

The Norkofskis sit outside as early as 6:30 a.m. and stay out as late as 8 or 9 p.m.

Lindy and Dennis Norkofski welcome visitors to their home porch in Oshkosh.

Their interactions can range from short small talk in passing to a sitting conversation that lasts an hour.

Lindy explained that their porch and the conversations are judgment free. Opinions are respected, and joking is encouraged.

“Come by for the hugs and stay for the sarcasm,” said Matt Mikkelsen, a friend of the Norkofskis. “Dogs just make it easy to bridge to a complete stranger. They’re always asking if they can give treats to somebody’s dog. From there, it’s just getting to know people.”

Lindy and Dennis are open to having any kind of conversation on their porch, whether it be political, personal or anything in-between. They understand that not everybody’s living situations are, or were, the same.

“If you’re having issues with whatever in life, come here,” Lindy said. “I will not judge you. Ask me my opinion and I will be honest with you, but I will not judge anybody because we all make choices in life.”

Lindy and Dennis are changing the community through dog treats and caring for others, Mikkelsen said.

“Something that’s really amazing, especially in today’s day and age, is that they’re that island of bringing the community together,” he said.

And all the Norkofskis want is to make others happy.

“If I make you feel better for you coming to say hi to me, that’s all I want,” Lindy said. “I don’t expect anything. I don’t want anything. Just come and talk to me if you want to and enjoy life.”

A letter from Dr. Thomas Hallquist Dentist Retired.

To address Covid-19 in our county, we need to treat this pandemic as a public health crisis first. Only then can we prevent a devastating second wave this fall that closes businesses and schools. We need to stop the false narrative that we have a choice between health and the economy. We know how to stop the spread. Taiwan a country of 24 million, had direct flights between its capital and Wuhan China where the outbreak started. Yet they had fewer cases and deaths than Winnebago County. Dentist have practiced “universal precautions” the last 34 years after the spread of the AIDS virus. Covid-19 is much more dangerous to the general population than AIDS, producing heart and lung damage in asymptomatic patients. Since up to half of Covid-19 infections are asymptomatic, everyone must wear a mask in public unless eating or drinking. All businesses must lobby our Winnebago County Board for this rule. The science of spread is clear. Epidemiologists determine an infection rate (R) for each virus. If no one wears a mask, one person infects on average 3 other people. This means over 5 cycles of virus transmission, one person gives Covid-19 to 3 people, who then infect 9 people, who then infect 27 people, who then infect 81 people. That is what we saw early in New York City. If only some people wear a mask and social distance, which is happening now, over 5 cycles of infection, one person may infect 2, then 4, then 8, then 16. We are seeing an uptick in our area. However, if everyone wears a mask, the R rate drops to less than one. If the R number is less than one, there is a good chance that over 5 cycles there will be a failure to pass the virus, the infection chain is broken, and the virus dies out. We can safely open the schools if universal mask wearing starts now. The mask I wear protects you, and the mask you wear protects me. I am asking all businesses to redirect their efforts quickly to universal mask wearing in Winnebago County. Work with our county health department. Online shopping has increased from 12% of folks to 18%. If 80% of the business complies with the health department recommendations, but 20% don’t, there will be an outbreak at a school or business, no one will feel safe in your business, and more will turn to online shopping.

We must have “Covid-19 Universal Precautions” followed by every business. It makes no sense to get your teeth cleaned with a hygienist who is double masking and wearing a face shield, then go into a store where neither you or the clerk have a mask. Every person, business, and school in Winnebago County needs the same protection you received in every Winnebago County Dental office. The mask you wear protects and keeps your fellow Americans safe. Your choice is no virus by the end of the year, or 60,000 additional US deaths.

Community funds keep families home

By Amy Putzer
OSHKOSH AREA COMMUNITY FOUNDATION

Launched jointly by the Oshkosh Area Community Foundation and Oshkosh Area United Way, the Oshkosh COVID-19 Relief Fund has been supporting efforts to keep residents experiencing economic hardship due to the COVID-19 crisis in their homes and provide people experiencing homelessness with round-the-clock emergency shelter.

“The 2018 ALICE (Asset Limited, Income Constrained, Employed) study showed that 46 percent of households in the city of Oshkosh are living paycheck to paycheck and struggling to make ends meet,” said Bill Wyman, president and CEO of the Oshkosh Area Community Foundation. “Our goal is to give added support to those organizations on the front lines of caring for these working families and other vulnerable populations.”

Recognizing that individuals without homes are at greater risk of contracting and spreading COVID-19, the Oshkosh COVID-19 Relief Fund and the city of Oshkosh came together to not only provide funding to postpone the Day by Day Warming Shelter’s closing date but also offer 24/7 shelter during May. A $6,000 grant from the Relief Fund supported this project.

Wisconsin was under a statewide moratorium on eviction filings because of the COVID-19 pandemic until May 26. The Relief Fund convened a Winnebago County Eviction Prevention Taskforce to help residents navigate the flow of information regarding the moratorium.

almost $1,500 allowed the taskforce to provide clear and accurate information to members of our community around the eviction moratorium and actions to take now to prevent future financial struggles.

In Winnebago, the number of eviction suits filed doubled year over year with 80 filed in June 1 through 24, compared with 40 during the same time last year.

According to Mary Ann Dilling, president and CEO of the Oshkosh United Way, its 211 information and referral line saw a 132 percent increase in calls requesting rental assistance so far in June compared with 2019.

The Wisconsin Rental Assistance Program (WRAP) should help some tenants catch up on missed payments. The Oshkosh COVID-19 Relief Fund is closely monitoring WRAP applications as it is feared that help needed from people who are behind on their rent is far greater than what the government funding can support.

The $25 million program will provide up to $3,000 to eligible individuals for making up missed rent payments or security deposits. It’s funded by money from the federal Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security (CARES) Act that was passed at the end of March.

Lu Scheer is the affordable housing director at ADVOCAP, one of the community action organizations that is administering the WRAP funding in Winnebago, Green Lake, Fond du Lac and Calumet counties. Scheer said her organization started taking applications June 8 and in the first two weeks, 55 Winnebago County households have been approved to receive assistance.

Scheer said many people have used part of their government stimulus check or increased unemployment benefits to pay rent up front but are now concerned about having money for current and future months.

“Sometimes they are prioritizing rent. But if they do that, then they don’t have any money left for other household expenses. Or because the eviction moratorium was in place through May 26, they paid other critical bills that they still had to pay and now they’re behind on rent,” Scheer said. “We also have some people who come to us who have not yet received their unemployment benefits even now, even though they were laid off several weeks ago, even months ago.”

School district meal programs serving students

The Oshkosh Area School District has started its annual Summer Food Service Program (SFSP) for students only, assisting the district’s free “grab-and-go” meal program started in response to school buildings closed during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Free meals are available to children under age 18. Individuals over 18 who are determined by a state or local public educational agency to be mentally or physically disabled and who participate in a public or private nonprofit school program during the regular school year also may receive free meals.

“This program fills a void created when school lunches are not available,” said Michele Stahmann, district director of food services. “Helping parents and caregivers meet the nutritional needs of their children is the strength of this program.”

The following locations will continue to serve free grab-and-go meals for children this summer for pickup on Mondays and

Thursdays through July 27:

- Perry Tipler Middle School: 10:15 to 11:15 a.m.
- Webster Stanley Middle School: 10:15 to 11:15 a.m.
- Jefferson Elementary School: noon to 1 p.m.
- Oshkosh North High School: noon to 1 p.m.

Children do not need to be present at the distribution site as adults are able to pick up meals for students in their household. Children or their parents, guardians or caregivers will be able to collect three days’ worth of breakfast and lunch meals on Mondays and four days’ worth of breakfast and lunch meals on Thursdays.

Children or those picking up meals must visit a district meal site on any distribution day they wish to receive food. Individuals are asked to bring backpacks, reusable bags or wagons if walking to a site. Although not required, picking up multiple days’ worth of food is encouraged.

Oshkosh4Education supports November school referendum

Oshkosh4Education, part of the Oshkosh Area Community Foundation with members sharing a vision for education, was polled by the Oshkosh Area School District ahead of a potential $107 million November capital and operation referendum for school consolidation, rehabilitation and construction.

The district asked what the community response to the proposed referendum has been. Among other responses, Oshkosh4 Education said that choosing not to pursue a November referendum would signal to the community that the needs outlined are not critically important and that they could be put on hold. They also said that doing nothing represents a significant cost to taxpayers to maintain the aging facilities.

Deputy Superintendent David Gundlach said that some of the oldest facilities are on the east side of the district and serve the most diverse group of students, which he said if left unfixed represents an equity issue.

The projected tax impact is $7.08 a month on homes valued at $100,000 for the total long-range package. The board is expected to make a final decision regarding pursuing future referendum(s) at its next meeting July 15.

If passed, the district would begin spending money to improve security and infrastructure districtwide through the 2020-2021 school year. Security and infrastructure updates would continue through 2022.

Also part of phase one of the four-phase referendum package would be two new schools. Work on a new Merrill Middle School is estimated to begin in 2022 and end and open in 2023. A new Webster Elementary School building would start construction in 2023 and potentially open that year.

Superintendent Vickie Cartwright said the district would have to reduce spending in the next two years to meet the referendum goals.

The board considered publishing a virtual tour of the aging facilities and posting it to its website so that residents can see the condition of the facilities. Board members have been asking questions on behalf of residents that defend frugal spending. The proposed referendum would renew the district’s previously approved $7.95 million in annual funds provided through two previous voter-approved Referendums for Learning in 2014 and 2016.

“Ultimately, the complete long-range facilities plan would create consolidated and modern schools, reducing the number of schools from 20 to 14 to maximize use and efficiency, and strengthen safety efforts,” district communications director Katie Nieman said.

Virtual recreation programs offered

The Oshkosh Recreation Department is offering a virtual summer program. Additional information, including times and session details, is at oshkoshrecdept.cr3.schooltoday.com. The programs will require Internet access and a device with a webcam.

Programs include:

Art Camp, July 13-14 or July 15-16: Students explore age-appropriate art techniques to learn basic art skills.

Little Einsteins, July 27-30: Students learn basic science concepts through entertaining demonstrations, discussions and engagement.

Kids in the Kitchen, July 20-30: Students learn basic kitchen skills and nutrition information, and will be given steps on how to create easy and healthy recipes.

Beginner Spanish, Aug. 3-6: Students learn basic language concepts including numbers, colors and greetings through interactive activities.

Epic Kid Coders, July 6-9 or Aug. 3-6:

Programming in Scratch 1: Students learn the basics of a visual programming language. Students will also learn to create basic games, an interactive story, and animation while adding sound and art.

Programming in Scratch 2: Students build upon the basics learned in PS1. Students take on more advanced projects building advanced games and stories.

Build Your Own Android App: Students learn basic programming principles while creating different games and applications for Android using App Inventor, an open-source, intuitive, visual programming environment that makes it easy and fun to build functional apps for smartphones and tablets.

Sheriff to read Declaration of Independence

Winnebago County Sheriff John Matz will read the Declaration of Independence from the steps of the Winnebago County Courthouse at 8 a.m. Saturday.

There were limited ways of proclaiming the news that the Declaration was adopted on July 4, 1776, and the years that followed. Officials published broadsides, clergy read it from their pulpits and county sheriffs read it from the courthouse steps.

County officials have asked the sheriff to continue honoring that tradition. “Now more than ever we need unity and civil discourse in this country,” Bill Wingren, County Board supervisor, said in a statement. “This will be a great way for friends and neighbors to gather for a few moments, reflect on the great blessings we have as Americans and begin a great day of celebrating our freedom.”

Fourth of July events

The only place to see fireworks this year around Oshkosh will be in Fisk for the annual “Fire In The Sky” event on July 3 at dusk. Parking will be available at the Utica Fire Department.

Other events going on:

- July 3
- Live music featuring Mike Malone Trio at Vines & Rushes Winery from 5:30 to 8:30 p.m. The event is free. Malone is a percussionist based out of Oshkosh. The trio is filled out by musicians from the Fox Valley.
- July 4
- American Platinum at Fin ’n’ Feather from 6 to 10 p.m.
  - Live music featuring Poise & Ivy at Vines & Rushes Winery from 2 to 5 p.m. The event is free. Poise & Ivy is an Americana/Folk duo, fronted by Sam Luna and Tae. The band provides a storytelling mood with their presence and music. Wood-fired pizza will be served from noon to 8 p.m.
  - Oshkosh Farmers Market from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

- July 8
- Menominee Park Beer Gardens at Menominee Park from 5 to 9 p.m. The event is free. There will be live music, food trucks and yard games. Local breweries will be serving craft beers.

Nearby places to see fireworks:

- July 3
- Fisk, dusk
  - Berlin, Riverside Park, dusk
  - Shawano, Airport, dusk
  - Weyauwega, over Lake Weyauwega, dusk
- July 4

Conger Stages Rear Field Charge for Speedway Win: In the 25-lap feature race Tuesday night at Leo’s speedway, Oshkosh’s ace driver, Dave Conger, (aka The Outlaw) threaded his way from the last row through the 12-car field to cop the feature event. Much to the delight of his loyal fans, Conger grabbed the lead on the 20th lap from Jerry Smith of Appleton after easing by second-running Claude La Duc of De Pere on the 18th lap. Neither Smith nor La Duc was going to let Conger out of sight, however as the three finished just inches apart after rain slicked the track on the last few laps, slowing the pace.

Local hospitality fueled steady AirVenture run

Longtime coordinator tries to fill the void

By Dan Roherty
OSHKOSH HERALD

Ron Hergert would normally be in the middle of lining up more than 100 local residences with the companies and individuals who make their way to the annual EAA AirVenture as he has for the past 35 years.

Instead, the housing and corporate services specialist has had to return or decline clients' deposits while he looks ahead to 2021. As one of the thousands of individuals and business enterprises connected to the global aviation convention that draws more than a half-million visitors each July, Hergert can only try to navigate a two-year vacuum in what had been a busy and reliable enterprise.

"My homeowners have all been very understanding," Hergert said. "They look forward to next year and having the same companies come back."

Hergert's Aero Expo Services also helps with the little details on both sides of the agreement. He helps convention-goers set up small parties and other entertainment, car rentals, catering services — anything that comes up during the usual 10-day stay — after assuring that housing details and agreements are understood to let everyone have peace of mind at home or away.

For this year he's mostly disappointed for the young volunteers and associated workers who rely on that summer paycheck, along with homeowners who depend on the financial arrangement each summer while forming lasting friendships with longtime clients who offer their home away from home.

"I watched a young family have their firstborn baby all the way through college," Hergert said of one homeowner, and received a letter from the college graduate thanking him for renting out their house all those years because the proceeds paid for his tuition. Hergert noted that the family never raised the rental price in the 35 years of working with them.

Hergert doesn't get involved in the prices set by homeowners — roughly based on about nine nights and the number of beds — but said it usually comes down to what they need to make it worth leaving their premises. He said there can be two identical houses, but one is owned by two retired people with a cabin who don't need the money compared to a younger family of five who would like to go to Disneyland and need the income.

He personalizes the services he provides beyond what an Airbnb can usually offer and as a local resident has to face any issues directly.

"I can't do it right by overcharging and I can't do it right by worrying about what AirBnB is doing," Hergert said.

He attends other air shows to meet company representatives who make those kinds of arrangements and checks on business referrals from vendors and anyone connected to an AirVenture attendee to know who he's working with. On the homeowner side he deals with mostly private homes to avoid insurance legalities with rental properties.

"Most of them are here to work; they're not here to tear up the town and have fun," Hergert said. "It's not a bucket list for them; it's a job." He said most of them are up early and out on the grounds each day and often return late.

Epic Aircraft is one of the aviation companies Hergert helps with its AirVenture visits, and it plans to continue that relationship as it has for the past eight years.

"He has always been dependable to help us find housing, setting up our display and taking care of any issues that have arisen," said Mike Schrader, director of sales and marketing for Epic, which is based in Bend, Ore. "There are several restaurants that were always catering our meals and we will continue to use them when we return next year."

Another longtime client of Hergert's expressed regret for not being able to keep him busy this year.

"He's always taken really good care of us and we'll stay with him as long as we can," said Mike Lorden, president of Aviation Supplies & Academics in Newcastle, Wash., a provider of aviation trading manuals along with other pilot supplies that is marking its 80th anniversary this year.

Lorden noted during a conversation that Aircraft Owners and Pilots (AOPA) had just canceled its Rochester, N.Y., show for Sept. 11-12, one of about a half dozen other conventions his company normally has on its calendar this time of year. He said attending AirVenture and other shows is much more than a sales opportunity.

"For our company, Oshkosh is really about branding ... it's about finding the trends in the industry, where things are going, how people are doing," he said. "It's a week of reconnecting with everybody at the beginning of summer, and we're going to miss that."

For Hergert, a calm and cooperative effort gets it done every year. He said he has a "1 percent problem ratio" with either a company or homeowner. Parties are usually pre-arranged, many involving a working meeting, but rarely get loud enough to spark a neighbor's complaint that Hergert may need to remedy.

"You can't fix stupid but you sure can Band-Aid it up and make it work," he said.

His enterprise began in the mid-1980s during a bar conversation at Mabel Murphy's with two AirVenture visitors who had walked in wet from a rainstorm with their suitcases after losing their rental space. The landlord had just evicted them because they had made the agreement with the primary renter.

"When you find Susie, who you rented it from, ask her for your $1,000 but tell her she's out of here too," Hergert said they were told by the landlord, who added,

"Here's the contract — no subleasing."

With a typewriter and carbon paper he created a standard contract and helped rent three or four houses in the first year, mostly in his neighborhood, later expanding through company referrals and his Jaycees connections. He said word spread after minimal advertising and then didn't need it at all to expand the demand.

Known for being able to fill the most obscure requests, Hergert recalls one from Bose Corp., whose planner was looking for a safari-themed party and mused that the event could use some lions, giraffes and other exotic animals.

"I got em," Hergert soon told the planner. "Give me a couple of days and I'll get some pictures to you."

He went to M. Schettl Sales to look at their menagerie of statues and had an agreement to supply some virtual animals for the party.

A week before the convention the company plane needed repairs and Bose had to shrink its itinerary so that theme had to be altered. Hergert came through again with a Warbirds theme with the help of the local National Guard unit and the Military Veterans Museum.

Hergert said 15-hour days aren't uncommon for him for about a month surrounding the fly-in, but the human interaction among his clients is special and personal. He also encourages communication through helpful notes by homeowners on how things work and where things are kept around the house — an ironing board and iron are often appreciated — while renters often leave behind thank-you notes and gifts for the homeowners.

In earlier years he used walkie-talkies to field calls from clients, including those seeking Oshkosh directions without realizing they were in Appleton or Fond du Lac. Some requests are hard to plan for: He lined up a dentist for a German man who didn't speak English and had a chronic toothache, and found a local welder to do a last-minute repair on an aircraft engine display rack.

Hergert expects to start booking houses this summer for 2021. He said the cancellation looked likely as early as January based on the volunteer efforts and international planning needed to be in place by now, and declined taking deposit payments with that in mind. He looks back at his meager beginnings to stay optimistic about getting past the gap.

"I can always go buy a typewriter again and carbon paper and start over again. I started with $300 in my pocket; I can start with $400 now," he joked. "I may have a hard time finding a typewriter."

business was operating with only 3 percent of its usual income. When EAA canceled AirVenture, the company lost 10 percent of its annual revenue.

“If we hadn’t been in business for 45 years, we’d have been closed,” Heisler said. “July is going to be horrible, but at least it’s better than 3 percent; we might have 5 percent or maybe even 10 percent of our normal income in July.”

The lodging industry has also taken a significant hit.

In mid-March — as the COVID-19 outbreak began to travel through Wisconsin — tourists began calling to cancel reservations, according to Amy Albright, executive director for the Oshkosh Convention & Visitors Bureau.

Canceled bookings continued into April, only to crescendo in May with the cancellation of AirVenture, as the UW Oshkosh study found that lodging accounts for roughly 35 percent of all visitor spending during AirVenture.

“The events in Oshkosh are a vital part of our tourism economy,” Albright said. “Certainly, the cancellation of AirVenture, which is our biggest event, had a huge impact on our hotel and hospitality industry.”

That impact isn’t limited to Oshkosh and the Fox Valley, as it’s also being felt in the tourist town of Green Lake.

Since March, the Green Lake Inn has lost roughly $39,000 in cancellations, of which $11,000 can be attributed to AirVenture’s cancelation, according to owner Linda Gaffney.

“I’ve been getting more phone calls, but I don’t know if I’ll get enough to be able to pay my taxes, insurance, utilities, advertisement bills and website bills,” she said. “There’s no way I’m going to make it through this summer unless something drastic happens.”

AirVenture’s impact wasn’t ignored by its coordinators leading up to the cancelation, as it was continually in the back of their minds throughout the planning process, according to EAA vice president of marketing and communications Rick Larsen.

“We’ve talked at length about the positive economic impact the event has on the region,” Larsen said. “We’re aware of the struggles, whether it’s hotels and restaurants, or anybody else that’s being impacted by COVID-19. The cancellation of AirVenture adds to that.”

The organization ultimately decided the health risks of hosting the event would be too high. Leading up to the announcement, Larsen said EAA members were reaching out to them, expressing concern about being in contact with a large group of people from all over the world.

“Our membership and our volunteers certainly skew a bit older, and those were the folks expressing concern,” he said. “We had to make a decision based on what was best for our volunteers, members and exhibitors from a safety standpoint.”

He said Spirit of Aviation Week aims to keep members engaged by “offering a lot of the things EAA is known for,” digitally.

Though EAA has already announced dates for AirVenture 2021, its future largely depends on COVID-19’s future, as a vaccine remains at least a year away. The organization is currently working to establish best practices for hosting an event of that magnitude amid the pandemic.

“There will be elements of it that probably will be different from prior years in terms of making sure that we’re implementing best practices,” Larsen said. “Even if we get a vaccine, that doesn’t mean everybody will participate in getting it and that the virus completely goes away.”

In the meantime, White says the best thing residents can do is adjust their spending patterns to support small businesses. He encourages companies to apply for any financial assistance available before deciding to close.

“We’ve been trying to promote and advocate that companies go after all the assistance that they can that’s out there right now,” White said.

Mason wins MVP, three Herd players make All-G League

By Ti Windisch
HERALD CONTRIBUTOR

Milwaukee Bucks two-way player Frank Mason was named the G League's most valuable player Thursday after a terrific season with the Wisconsin Herd in which he averaged 26.4 points, 3.4 rebounds, 5.0 assists, and 1.1 steals per game.

Mason's points came efficiently all season, as he was less than nine free throw percentage points away from a famed 50/40/90 season: Mason shot 50.4 percent from the field, 42.5 percent from three-point territory, and 81.5 percent at the line.

"I have to say none of this would be possible without God, my amazing teammates, outstanding coaching staff, and unbelievable front office," Mason said via Twitter.

As he maintained all season, Herd head coach Chase Buford noted Mason's leadership and character in a congratulatory statement on the point guard being named MVP.

"Frank has been an unbelievable point guard and leader for us all season," Buford said. "Throughout the season, he proved that he is an NBA caliber player, and this deserved recognition clearly reflects that. Frank is a high-quality person and teammate, and that impresses me most."

Wisconsin general manager Dave Dean praised Mason's work ethic and attitude while he was with the Herd during the season.

"As was evident by his production and contribution, Frank embraced his opportunity while with us," Dean said. "It was a privilege to watch him play and develop, and his growth over the course of the season was nothing short of tremendous."

Mason led all G League players to appear in at least 10 games in per game scoring with his 26.4 points per contest, and he was one of just two players to average 25 points or more while also hitting at least 50 percent of his shots. Mason ended the season on a hot streak, earning Player of the Month honors in February before becoming the G League's 20th MVP and the first to win the award as a member of the Herd.

Additionally, Mason joined teammate Jaylen Adams in being named to the All-NBA G League First Team, and forward Jemerrio Jones was named to the All-NBA G League Third Team.

Adams, who was runner-up in MVP voting to Mason, averaged 21.5 points, 5.1 rebounds, 5.7 assists, and 1.8 steals per game, and was generally excellent both when sharing duties with Mason and when playing as the main point guard.

Jones, the G League's best rebounder in 2019-20, averaged 10.8 points, 12.0 rebounds, 4.6 assists, 1.3 steals, and 0.9 blocks per game. Jones was consistently impactful for the Herd, and played more minutes than any player for Wisconsin this season.

The Bucks signed Mason to his two way contract in late July, and due to his strong season with the Herd he'll have a chance to find a full-time NBA spot when free agency opens in October, whether it's in Milwaukee or somewhere else. Adams and Jones continue to be NBA free agents as they have been all season, open to sign contracts with any team, although the Herd hold their returning rights if they do end up playing another G League season.

Clark returning to FVA as North assistant coach

By Tim Froberg
HERALD CONTRIBUTOR

Brad Clark and Oshkosh hoops go together like socks and sneakers. The two are pairing up for a new gig.

Clark, a prominent college player at the University of Wisconsin Oshkosh and a highly successful prep coach in the city, has joined the boys' basketball coaching staff at Oshkosh North as a varsity assistant.

"It's one of those situations where I wasn't really planning on coaching," Clark said. "I really just wanted to sit in the stands with my wife, watch my kid play for four years and just enjoy it."

That was the plan until Spartans head coach Brad Weber called and offered him a position. Clark has a long connection with Oshkosh basketball and is returning to it after serving as a varsity assistant last season under Tom King at Laconia.

"I think it will be fun," Clark said. "It's a new culture and a new environment. I kind of experienced it a little when I went to Ripon. Those three years as an assistant made me look at basketball and coaching a little differently. I enjoyed coaching with Tom King at Laconia, but all the driving back and forth took its toll on the family. I have five kids and being able to coach in the district makes it a lot easier."

Clark joined the Laconia staff after an outstanding three-year run as head coach at Lourdes Academy where he posted a 60-20 record and guided the Knights to the WIAA Division 4 state championship game in 2018-19.

Clark previously coached at Oshkosh West for 12 seasons (2001-12), including the last five as head coach where he led the Wildcats to a WIAA Division 1 state tournament appearance in 2008. After leaving West in 2012, he was an assistant coach at Ripon College from 2012-2015.

In addition to being a skilled coach, Clark was an elite player. He was a prolific scorer at Markesan High School where he was selected as Wisconsin's Mr. Basketball and the Wisconsin Boys Basketball Player of the Year in 1996. Clark went on to become a three-time all-Wisconsin Intercollegiate Athletic Conference first-team selection at UW Oshkosh where he ranks as the school's seventh all-time leading scorer with 1,692 points. He remains the only player in school history to make the NCAA Division III all-West Region Team three straight seasons.

Clark is joining a rock-solid coaching staff at North, and says he'll have no problem with a supporting role.

"Coach Weber has done a great job there for a long time," Clark said. "There is a good culture there in terms of winning, developing players and competing in the FVA. It's going to be a challenge for me from a scouting standpoint to the X's and O's."

"It's one of those situations where you take your knowledge and experience as a head coach to help out another head coach the best you can. I've adapted to that. It's a great staff with a lot of young guys who have played college basketball. It's just one more chance to continue to coach."

Clark, a physical education and health teacher at Perry Tippler Middle School, will be joined at North by his son, Steven, an incoming 6-foot-5 freshman who is expected to be a part of the varsity team.

"Steven has gone to Web's camps the past two years and that's where I got to know him (Weber) a little better," said Clark. "I wanted to make sure that Steven was OK with the decision because some kids don't want their parents coaching them. I think everyone has to understand that when they're on the court, they're players. You don't look at them as your kid and try and help them out."

"I've told coach Weber that just because I'm here, don't coach him any differently than anyone else. Coach him hard. But it will be fun. As you get older you realize that things go by way too quickly. The opportunity to coach your kid is a great one."

Clark replaces longtime Spartans assistant John Cameron, who has retired. Cameron was a part of previous North coaching staffs led by Mark Christensen and Frank Schade.

"What Brad gives us is another great teacher of the game," Weber said. "Obviously, with his experience as a head coach and assistant at Ripon and even his experience as a player— he was an extremely good high school and college player — he brings a wealth of experience and knowledge."

North is coming off a 13-11 season and a sixth-place 9-9 finish in the FVA.

"With Stevie being an incoming freshman, he (Brad Clark) knows our players well and is very comfortable with them," Weber said. "He's another guy that's going to be great at building relationships with our kids."

Clark is confident there will be a basketball season this winter amid the uncertainty of the coronavirus pandemic.

"Well, we're slowly getting back into the swing of things and I think there will be a basketball season," he said. "I sure hope there is because it's something the kids need. My personal opinion is that although basketball is scheduled to start in mid-November, push it back until maybe after Christmas and run it in January and February. Just don't play the nonconference games."

"I'm very hopeful that we'll be able to get something of the coming season. The kids deserve it. It's something you can never get back."

Obituaries

Vernon Akin Swanson

Vernon Akin Swanson, 97, of Oshkosh, joined Jesus and his beloved wife in heaven on Tuesday, June 23, 2020. Born July 30, 1922 in Bittern Lake, Alberta, Canada, he was the son of the late Rudy L. and Cosey O. (Akin) Swanson. He is preceded in death by his wife of 65 years, Jane T. Swanson, his brothers, Robert W. Swanson, Milford Humphrey and Edward Humphrey, and his sisters, Frances Humphrey, Louise Humphrey, Lois Staples and Evanelle Baldwin. Vern was adored by his children, Paul (Jody) Swanson of Oshkosh, Mary

Swanson and Bill Swanson of Milwaukee and Betsy (Erik) Magner of Fort Wayne, Indiana; and his grandchildren, Alexandra and Michael Swanson, and Anna, Laura, and Stefan Magner. Vern attended Appleton High School. In 1939, he began his college career at University of Wisconsin, Madison, which was postponed when he was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army Air Corps in 1942. After completing bombardier-navigator training, he was assigned to the 20th Air Force, 58th Bomb Wing, 770th Bomb Squadron, 462nd Bomb Group. In 1944, he was stationed in the Pacific Theater in India, flying missions over the Himalayan Mountains, "The Hump." He flew the Boeing B-29 Superfortress from bases in western China to targets in Japan and Manchuria. He completed his 35th combat mission while stationed in Tinian, Mariana Islands. Vern celebrated VJ Day while in Honolulu waiting for leave. While his children considered him a war hero, he gave the credit to all the other veterans who fought in WWII, the Greatest Generation. Upon returning to civilian life, he resumed his education at the University of Wisconsin, graduating from the Law School, in 1950. He was a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, where he made and kept life-long friends, and fellow die-hard Badger fans. Vern continued his service with the Air Force Reserve, until 1971 reaching the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. Working as an attorney, in Milwaukee, Vern met his true love, Jane. After his first date in July 1952, he never dated another and they were married on May 2, 1953. In 1964, they settled in Oshkosh, where Vern joined Jack Lenahan, a Law School chum, and formed Lenahan and Swanson. In 1980, his son, Paul, having graduated from Vern's alma mater, joined him, and the firm subsequently merged with Steinhilber, Chaney, Nesbitt & Guiles. The firm continues today as Steinhilber Swanson LLP with offices in Oshkosh, Madison & Milwaukee. In 1988, Vern and Jane decided to retire and enjoy life, for as Vern put it, he didn't know how much time he might have, and wanted to enjoy life a bit. Well, enjoy they did for the next 30 years with winters in Puerto Vallarta, summers in Steamboat and a base of operations in Bella Vista Village in Arkansas. There was always a never-ending stream of old friends and family joining them for many good times. Eventually, they returned to Oshkosh living the last few years here at home. Vern was known for his positive attitude, perhaps a product of his membership in the Optimist Club, where he modeled servant leadership and worked as a volunteer, inviting his children to join in. He served on numerous boards, giving freely his time and advice. Vern enjoyed his work, but his passion was spending time with his children and creating memorable adventures. He was remembered as always being home for dinner, then off to play tennis with one of his kids, or perhaps a bike ride to Pet's Ice Cream Parlor for a huge cone and a ride through Menominee Park. He and his wife took up skiing when he was 50, and after that the family adventures included trips to the Upper Peninsula and to Colorado. Vern was never without a camera, so he captured all the events of his life on film. Perhaps the most endearing trait of Vern was his talent to bring friends together. During their stay in Milwaukee, a group of friends created a way to stay connected, and Vern and Jane became charter members of the 2000 Club. They met annually with this group to ensure their connection would not be broken, and in the year 2000, they gathered for the party of the century. Vern and Jane were masterful entertainers and loved a sense of community. Over the years, they found time to gather in various places with Vern's Sig Ep fraternity brothers and their families, mostly in Puerto Vallarta, and easily made friends wherever they were. The family would like to thank the many caregivers who were Vern's companions on daily escapades, and later assisted with his well-being. They were angels and friends to Vern, who reciprocated with a smile and hug. Vern's adventures have only just begun, as we know that heaven could not wait for his arrival. A Mass of Christian burial will be celebrated at St. Raphael the Archangel Catholic Church, 830 S. Westhaven Dr., Oshkosh, on Thursday, July 2, 2020 at 10:00 a.m. with Fr. Tom Long presiding. Family and friends may call at the church on Thursday one hour before Mass. Interment will be in Sacred Heart Cemetery, 2595 Knapp St. Rd., Oshkosh, after Mass, with full military honors. In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations be made in Vern's name to St. Raphael the Archangel Catholic Church, Oshkosh, or the Alzheimer's Association.

Standards Link: Letter sequencing. Recognizing identical words. Skim and scan reading. Recall spelling patterns.

Studies have shown that students who learn using newspapers become more active citizens as adults. They also grow up to vote in local, state and national elections. The students in schools with NIE programs do 10 percent better in reading scores than students in schools without the programs. They help students develop daily reading habits that will last their entire lives.
